Alameda County Water District to Host Fifth Financial Workshop
Financial planning scenarios to be reviewed

Fremont, Calif. — The Alameda County Water District's Board of Directors will hold the fifth in an ongoing series of financial workshops on Wednesday, August 15 at 4 p.m. The workshop will review the District's financial planning model and various scenarios that may affect future proposed rate adjustments.

"As a matter of formal practice, our Board of Directors and management team carefully deliberate future issues when addressing the District's financial plans. Our community must consider tomorrow's needs today," said Paul Sethy, Board President. "Ratepayers are encouraged to participate firsthand in the process and provide their input during ACWD's series of financial workshops."

The board will consider a number of issues during the workshop, including the District's approach to financing its share of California WaterFix, issuing debt for future capital projects, and the timeline for payments toward district liabilities for pension and retiree health care benefits. An evaluation of future water demand scenarios and how they would impact revenue and rates will also be presented.

Additional workshops in this year's series are currently scheduled for September 27 (tentative) and December 6. Each workshop will be publicly noticed and an agenda will be posted prior to each meeting that will include the meeting date, time and location.
